Going to Sleep.
"If you have never done so, watch yourself go to sleep," said a physician, "and you will be amazed to see how tense your position is. Your knees are drawn and bended, your back is curved, the arms are held more or less tightly to the body and the fingers are folded. The eyelids are held shut, not allowed to droop over the eyes, the neck is strained and the head seems to touch the pillow only at the temples. The points of contact with the bed are really at the temples, shoulders, hips, knees and ankles. Now look at a child sleeping. Every muscle is relaxed, every joint is inert and prone on the couch; his little frame finds rest at every point. The features are undone, so to speak, the nose widens, the mouth droops, the eyelids close easily, and with every line of expression obliterated he finds utter and complete repose. The abandon makes him fall out of bed sometimes, such an inert body has he become. You may imitate him even to that degree, if necessary. Begin at your toes to relax, loosen all your joints and muscles, unbend your fingers, shake your wrists loose, take the curve and strain out of your neck, go all in pieces, in fact, and see how the day's fatigue seems to slip off from you, and the gentle mantle of rest and oblivion to unfold you like a garment."

Illustrating the Text.
In his book on India, "The Highroad of Empire," Mr. Murray enlivens a description of the curts of that country with a story of a fellow Englishman who had traveled in the east. He was a Kentish squire who was interested in giving his tenants an intelligent idea of what he had seen abroad. He had made a journey in Palestine and, being an admirable draftsman, had brought home a number of excellent sketches. One winter evening after his return the squire gave a lecture to his village and showed a number of his drawings. Among them was a cart very similar to that which I drew at Jodhpur. The squire explained to his audience that it was a type of the most primitive conveyances known and that it had existed in precisely this same form in Palestine from the earliest times—indeed, that it was probably a cart or wagon of this description that Joseph had sent down from Egypt to bring his father and his household goods from Canaan. Afterward an old farmer came up and expressed his great interest in what he had heard, adding that there was one thing above all others which had interested him, and that was the cart, "for now," he said, "I understand why Joseph said to his brethren, 'See that ye fall not out by the way.'"

Wild Beasts of New York City.
As a matter of fact, it is not very generally known that wild trout may be taken and wild game killed within the corporate limits of New York city. Certainly I have found but few that seemed to know that foxes, and not always foxes bred for the purpose, but the genuine wild Reynard, are chased on Staten Island. The city limits are very extended. A good slice is taken off Westchester county at the north, the whole of one end of Long Island at the east, while Staten Island entire is included at the south. There are wooded districts within these boundaries—brushy hills and swampy thickets—some of them well high inaccessible. There are fresh water streams and lakes, and there are vast areas of salt water; also there are wide set meadows or marsh lands where the waters of ocean and bay and sound swept long ago and where salt creeks and inlets still make and ebb with the tide. Such haunts as these are ideal, and the creatures that have held them against three centuries of civilization are not to be easily driven away.—Albert Bigelow Paine in Metropolitan.

The Hardest Blow.
An artist who has attained fame and an income was telling some friends of his early struggles. "I had spent eight weeks on the picture," he said, "and had put my very soul into it, and we were penniless. My wife was hungry and in rags, the baby was sickly and I was discouraged. I hawked that picture about town desperately, only to bring it home that night. No one would have it."
"I suppose that was the hardest blow of your life," suggested a sympathetic friend.

"Oh, no, it wasn't, either. I could stand that. I knew I was right. But next day I went out to answer every promising advertisement. The last on the list read, 'Dishwasher wanted.'"
"I felt secure of that, so saved it for the last. But when I applied the greasy proprietor of the restaurant looked me over with a critical eye."
"Ah, yes," he said, "and what experience as a dishwasher have you had?"
"Of course I hadn't any, and he would not take me. I've never forgiven him for that awful jolt to my pride."

The Reform Fell Through.
The Man—Now, look here, Helen, we're going to run this household on a more methodical system. Everything in its place, so that we will know where everything is kept.
His Wife—Oh, how nice! Now, let's begin with your late hours, dear. I should dearly like to know where they are kept.—Lippincott's Magazine.
